Plenty of $20s to go around for fast followers

Two childhood friends conduct social experiment giving away $20 each day ◗ All you have to do is check their website and be the first to make it to the designated spot ◗ Businesses are showing interest in sponsorships

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

Nicholas Ye sat in his Beacon Street office yesterday constantly refreshing a website that would at some point tell him the location of money hidden somewhere in Greater Boston.

Then finally, about 3:30 p.m., the site — Plentyoftwenties.com — alerted followers to the location: the Red Auerbach statue at Faneuil Hall.

Ye, a 24-year-old loan analyst, approached the statue with a hurried gate, reached under the statue, found an envelope and smiled.

"I feel a little bit richer, a little happy," Ye said.

The $20 Ye found is a venture by two friends from Wakefield.

"Since we were 3 years old we had these silly debates and conversations. And one day we were arguing how far you would go for $20," said Steven Grant, a 35-year-old lawyer who co-founded the site with Richard Cook, a psychiatrist.

The friends pick a different spot each day in Greater Boston where they hide $20. There are no riddles or clues and the duo posts a photograph of the exact location. However, the time the location is revealed varies.

Grant said the site is a social experiment "just to see what happened," but it has grown in popularity in the month they've been hiding money. The site averages about 500 visits per day, but as media reports have begun spreading the news, yesterday's visits were about 5,000.

Grant said that so far some stores and businesses have approached them to be sponsors.

Ye has been following the site for a month and yesterday was his third time finding the envelope. He's going to be responsible with this $20.

"I've got bills to pay," he said.

Harvard: Soda makes kids angry

BOSTON. Sugary drinks could be the cause of some students' anger and aggression, according to a new report released from Harvard University.

Researchers went into 22 Boston schools to examine the behavioral tendencies of students ages 14 to 18 who drink soda.

Of the 19,000 students surveyed, 43 percent who drank two or more sodas daily said they were more likely to carry a weapon. METRO

Store near 'Occupy' burglarized

BOSTON. Police yesterday released images of two men they believe burglarized a Downtown shop, which has been vandalized four times in as many weeks.

The door to Congress Card & Tobacco was smashed on Sept. 29, Oct. 9, 11 and Tuesday, and tobacco products and cash had been taken, police said.

The owner of the store, Linda Capillo, told WCVB that she found a cardboard sign on the floor with writing connected with the nearby Occupy Boston encampment.

An Occupy Boston spokesman told WCVB they speak out against violence and vandalism. METRO

Questions about your fertility? We have answers.

What does Boston IVF do?

A national leader in cutting-edge reproductive technologies and patient care, Boston IVF compassionately assists individuals and couples overcome infertility and achieve their dreams of starting a family. With more than 30,000 babies born since 1986 and each of our physicians on staff at Harvard Medical School, we are among America's most experienced fertility centers.

What services does BIVF provide?

With over ten locations throughout Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire, our infertility centers offer a wide-array of services including consultation and evaluation, IVF, intrauterine insemination, ovulation stimulation cycles, ultra-sound services, blood hormone evaluations and more.

How can Boston IVF help?

Research suggests that many couples and individuals who can become pregnant with assisted reproductive technology (ART) do not because they are afraid to initiate treatment. At Boston IVF, we ensure patients are comfortable and confident throughout the treatment process. So, when it comes to assessing their chances to become pregnant, we take a personal approach. We assess our patient's chances based on their own health and fertility profile. By tailoring our medical evaluations and services to their personal needs, they receive the highest quality of customized treatment.

How can patients initiate a fertility evaluation at Boston IVF?

Simple actually. Call (888) 300-BIVF (2483) to schedule a consultation. In addition, our Patient Liaison Rhonda Gannon is available, via phone or email, to individuals with questions about their fertility. Go to www.bostonivf.com and click on our Ask Rhonda page.

T breaks ground on wind turbine

COURTNEY SACCO/METRO

▶ A wind turbine

BOSTON. A 125-foot-tall wind turbine going up at the T's Kingston Layover Facility will generate more than 65 percent of the station's energy, according to MassDOT and local officials who broke ground on the project yesterday near the Kingston Commuter Rail stop.

The construction will be paid for with $2.5 million in federal money.

The 100-kilowatt wind turbine project is expected to save the MBTA roughly $100,000 a year on electricity costs.

Also funded under the grant is a second 300-kilowatt turbine to be installed along the tracks in Bridgewater this spring. METRO

Need a quick change of clothes after spending all night at someone's place?

Maybe you've been trekking around in heels all day and want a more relaxing pair of kicks.

Either way, Hub resident Gina Moro has got you covered.

Moro's startup business, "Automatic Apparel," sells these items and more from a vending machine inside South Station and two other locations.

"Everything is under $15," said Moro. "From basic electronics and cell phone chargers to fashionable apparel like T-shirts, socks and underwear."

Moro said sales have been great so far, citing a demand for women's flats and men's T-shirts.

"We have to fill it every week. We go through things pretty fast."

"The No. 1 reason you may visit Automatic Apparel is because 'I bought this thong out of a vending machine' makes for some sultry pillow talk."

A recent Harvard Business School graduate, Moro came up with the concept for clothes-on-the-go as part of a project in one of her classes.

By the numbers

The Bay State is home to nearly 10,000 millionaires. That's according to a recent review by the Boston Business Journal of 2009 state tax filers who earned $1 million or more. Here's a sampling of how that breaks down in local communities:

Boston is one of the communities with the highest number of millionaires. However, it does not have the most. Newton, for example, has more.

640

Despite having hundreds of millionaires, only 0.5 percent of Cambridge's population lives in a home that earned more than $1 million.

Quincy has a lot of waterfront homes, but fewer millionaires.

Legislation calls for study on suicides

Just a day after State Police and fire officials safely talked a suicidal man down from the Tobin Bridge, a bill was heard on Beacon Hill to help combat suicide in the Bay State.

The legislation, which went before the Joint Committee of Public Health yesterday, urges lawmakers to create a special commission to examine suicide and self-inflicted injuries.

The bill also aims to set up a public health policy initiative and "identify strategies to support and implement a state plan to reduce the incidence of suicide and self harm." METRO/SA

Netflix flops: On the company's rapid fall

The popular DVD-by-mail and online streaming service has suffered huge losses in valuation over the past year Where did it all go wrong?

Shares of one-time Wall Street darling Netflix plunged 34 percent in heavy trading yesterday, a day after the battered movie rental company warned of more subscriber defections and mounting costs.

On Monday, Netflix said it would see more cancellations as it grapples with the fallout from a price increase and other unpopular moves, including a failed attempt to split its online and DVD services into two separate companies.

"We believe the [Netflix] model is unsustainable, as the company faces rising costs that it hoped it could pass onto its [subscribers], who appear unwilling to do so," Janney Capital Markets said in a note to clients. The brokerage cut its rating on the stock to "sell."

The downward spiral for the shares started in July when the company that shook up Hollywood with its DVD-by-mail service announced a price increase for subscribers who wanted both DVDs and online streaming of movies and television shows.

Netflix — which is trying to recover from the roughest patch in its nearly 15-year history as it emphasizes online streaming of television and movies — forecast a loss for the first quarter of 2012 as it spends more to expand to Europe.

Netflix told investors on that DVD subscriptions would "decline sharply this quarter" but total U.S. subscribers, which includes customers who of its online streaming service, would be "slightly up."

Netflix has long enjoyed a near-monopoly in the online streaming space but the recent entry of new players Amazon.com and Google's YouTube could lead to subscribers switching to alternative services.

IS IT POSSIBLE TO TRANSFORM THE WAY EMERGENCY CARE IS DELIVERED?

At Brigham and Women's Hospital, we're doing it.

What if emergency care were designed around you? What if all the different steps typically encountered in an emergency department could be streamlined?

That's just what we've done at Brigham and Women's Hospital. At our newly expanded facility, we've transformed the entire process of providing emergency care.

When you arrive, you'll be greeted briefly by a nurse then typically brought directly to the patient care area where you'll be met by your own care team. Our board-certified emergency physicians and specialists are on site 24 hours a day. And with our state-of-the-art diagnostic testing, we offer some of the most advanced care in emergency medicine today.

World-class emergency care designed around you. It's one more way we're doing everything possible for our patients.

New Apple TV set could be next up

◗ Sources say tech giant working on its biggest screen yet ◗ Jobs told biographer he figured out an interface

Apple Inc. is turning to the software engineer who built iTunes to help lead its development of a television set, according to three people with knowledge of the project.

Jeff Robbin, who helped create the iPod in addition to the iTunes media store, is now guiding Apple's internal development of the new TV effort, said the people, who declined to be identified because his role isn't public.

Robbin's involvement is a sign of Apple's commitment to extending its leadership in smartphones and tablets into the living room. Before his Oct. 5 death, Apple co-founder Steve Jobs told biographer Walter Isaacson that he had "finally cracked" how to build an integrated TV with a simple user interface that would wirelessly synchronize content with Apple's other devices.

"It will have the simplest user interface you could imagine," Jobs told Isaacson in the biography "Steve Jobs," released Monday by Simon & Schuster.

Trudy Muller, a spokeswoman for Cupertino, California-based Apple, declined to comment. Outside of Jobs's remarks in the book, Apple hasn't acknowledged that it's developing a TV set.

BLOOMBERG

Don't ask WWJD

When Apple CEO Tim Cook took the microphone at a memorial tribute to Steve Jobs last week, he shared a piece of advice Jobs gave him before his death on Oct. 5.

"Among his last advice he had for me, and for all of you, was to never ask what he would do. 'Just do what's right,'" Cook said. Jobs wanted Apple to avoid the trap that Walt Disney Co. fell into after the death of its iconic founder, Cook said, explaining: "Everyone spent all their time thinking and talking about what Walt would do."

Survivors pulled from the rubble

ERCIS, TURKEY. Rescuers pulled a 2-week-old baby girl alive from a collapsed apartment block yesterday as they battled to find survivors of an earthquake in eastern Turkey that killed more than 400 people and made tens of thousands homeless. The baby's mother and a grandmother were also brought out alive on stretchers to jubilant cries from onlookers. REUTERS

Inglorious end to Libya strongman

- Gaddafi reportedly buried in secret desert grave, officials say
- Meanwhile, former rebels must now figure out how to rule country

PHILIPPE DESMAZES/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ The city of Sirte, above, has been destroyed in months of fierce civil war. Libya's new leaders began the tough task of forging an interim government uniting the nation's disparate political forces after 42 years of Gaddafi's iron-fisted rule.

Muammar Gaddafi and his son Mo'tassim were buried in a secret desert location yesterday, five days after the deposed Libyan leader was captured, killed and put on grisly public display.

Gaddafi's cleric, Khaled Tantoush, who was captured with him, prayed over the bodies before they were taken from the compound in the coastal city of Misrata — where they had been on show — and handed to two NTC loyalists for burial, officials said.

The NTC had worried many outsiders by displaying the corpses in a meat locker until their decaying state forced them on Monday to call a halt.

"I laughed when I saw him being beaten as he deserved to be. And I laugh again now that I know he is in the ground."
EMANI ZAID, 20, A STUDENT

Under pressure from Western allies, the NTC promised the same day to investigate how Gaddafi and his son were killed. Mobile phone footage shows both alive after their capture. The former leader was seen being mocked, beaten and abused before he died, in what NTC officials say was crossfire. REUTERS

Lohan to pose naked for Playboy

Show us something we haven't seen before, Lohan. Maybe, like, personal responsibility?

So, this comes as no surprise: Lindsay Lohan will pose nude for Playboy, according to TMZ. The magazine is said to have initially offered the troubled actress $750,000, which she turned down. She agreed when they came back with a figure closer to her $1 million asking price. Work is already underway for the issue, as Lohan is said to have done her first revealing photo shoot over the weekend. "The photo shoot went well," her mother Dina Lohan tells X17 Online.

And now, friends, it's only a matter of time before she starts to star in soft-core porn on Cinemax. But, on the upside, this looks like the most productive, legit thing she's done in awhile.

The Kardashians: Coming to a bathroom near you

▶ The Kardashian sisters promote their "Kardashian Kollection" at a Sears in California in September.

Is there no end to the Kardashian empire? The reality TV family-turned-moguls have filed documents with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office to use the name "Kardashian Kollection Home" on an upcoming product line. TMZ.com reports that the Kardashians "plan to use the trademark on everything from bath mats to hand towels, pillow covers, sheets, golf towels, football towels, linens, candlesticks and even beer mugs."

There's no word on if Kardashian Kollection Home will be sold exclusively at Sears, where they currently sell their Kardashian Kollection of clothes, handbags, shoes, belts, jewelry, hosiery and sunglasses. (Does anyone else read Kardashian Kollection and think: "Krap"?) But if they think they're going to expand and encroach on Martha Stewart's Home empire, they may want to think twice — or thrice. If anyone knows how to fashion a handmade shiv to ward off threats to her business, it's Martha Stewart.

Talking points

Moore and Kutcher on set

Ashton Kutcher had a surprise visitor at work recently, as wife Demi Moore swung by the set of "Two and a Half Men," where the pair combated divorce rumors by acting "like a couple," a source says, according to Hollyscoop. "They were talking and smiling at each other. Everything seemed just like normal." Audience members watching the taping of the hit sitcom didn't know she was there, though: "Demi didn't come on the actual shooting set or anything — she never does — but she spent the day on the lot in his massive trailer," the source adds.

Lovato moves to Valderrama

Demi Lovato appears to be finding happiness in the arms of former flame Wilmer Valderrama, according to Life & Style. The pair reportedly turned heads at a recent party at "Family Guy" creator Seth MacFarlane's home. "They showed up together and made no effort to hide that they're back together. They were stealing kisses throughout the night, holding hands and just seemed to enjoy being together," a source says. "Demi couldn't seem happier about it. They were dirty dancing to the music, and when they were seated, Wilmer had his hands on Demi's knee the entire time. He was being very boyfriend-like and affectionate."

Bieber likes to rent for Gomez

Justin Bieber may have set a tough standard to maintain when he reserved the entire Staples Center in L.A. to watch "Titanic" with girlfriend Selena Gomez. He pulled off another private screening recently, renting out a movie theater in Winnipeg so the pair could watch "Real Steel," according to Us Weekly. "They made sure to keep everything really under wraps and private," a source says. And the next night, Bieber treated Gomez to a hockey game at the MTS Centre — though he opted for a private suite instead of renting out the entire complex.

Toasting Ralph Lauren

New York City's Lincoln Center was abuzz Monday as a star-studded guest list including Anna Wintour, Martha Stewart and Uma Thurman turned up for "An Evening with Ralph Lauren," hosted by none other than Oprah Winfrey. Winfrey chatted with the iconic designer about his 45-plus years in the industry in a conversation similar to the interview that ran on her show in May. "You are one of the top fashion brands in the world. How do you reinvent it?" Winfrey asked, to which Lauren jokingly replied, "You copy." A dinner followed the talk, with the gala raising over $7 million for the Ralph Lauren Center for Cancer Care and Prevention and the Lincoln Center for Performing Arts.

Lauren and his old pal, Winfrey

Quoted

Do you remember your first Ralph Lauren purchase?
"The first thing I ever owned was simple chinos, sort of from grade school. Actually, no, I take that back — someone gave me a Ralph Lauren fragrance when I was born." LAUREN BUSH

Does Oprah still get nervous hosting an event like this?
"No, oh my God, no. She adores Ralph Lauren, they are actually friends. She was very excited to do this for him. Listen, you don't get Oprah out on a school night — but when she was asked by the Ralph Lauren people, there was no question that she would be here tonight." GAYLE KING

What are you hoping Oprah will ask Ralph Lauren?
"How do you stay on course to your vision? That is one formula that I want to take back with me." PRABAL GURUNG

What was your first Ralph Lauren piece?
"It might have been a blazer. I wear [them] a lot because they fit perfectly and go with everything." CAMILLA BELLE

What do you think 2012 will bring?
"Hopefully better luck for us and for my husband — quieter and no scandals. It's been a tough year." WENDI MURDOCH

FALLING INTO NOVEMBER

November brings crisp blue skies, falling leaves and annual traditions that everyone looks forward to — football games and tailgating, apple picking and pie baking and gatherings with family and friends.

Enjoy an end-of-season bike tour or harbor cruise on an Indian summer day. And while native corn are out of season you can still shop at one the many farmers markets for root vegetables, cider and pumpkins. Most are open right up to week of Thanksgiving. Speaking of Thanksgiving, why not take a short road trip to Plimoth Plantation, home of the first Thanksgiving, the Mayflower II and the Wampanoag Homesite.

Speaking of food, how about a Culinary Walking Tour — where food expert Michele Topor reveals the best pasticcerias, salumerias and enotecas in Boston's North End. The Chinatown Market Tour unlocks the mysteries beyond the Gate, concluding with a Dim Sum luncheon. There are also decadent Chocolate Walking Tours that would even impress Willie Wonka.

The arts season is well under way. The Boston Ballet opens its season with the timeless classic "Romeo and Juliet." Herman Melville's classic tale of a mythic sea monster and the vengeful Captain Ahab will have you riveted in your seats at the Paramount Center from Nov. 7-12. The Boston Lyric Opera performs the psychological, political and supernatural "Macbeth" from Nov. 4-13.

Comedy more to your liking? Then catch veteran SNL comedian Dana Carvey at the Wilbur Theatre on Nov. 6. Storyteller extraordinaire, Garrison Keillor entertains on Sunday, Nov. 13, at Symphony Hall as part of the Celebrity Series, while virtuoso violinist, Itzhak Perlman also performs on Nov. 20 at Symphony Hall.

Not to rush the season, but the Christmas Craft Festival featuring more than 300 master craftsmen is at the World Trade Center from Nov. 4-6. Get a head start on some shopping and don't miss the crowd favorite — the Gingerbread House competition. The eighth annual Mayor's Holiday Special kicks off Nov. 1 with half-price tickets for 78 holiday shows and special restaurant discounts across the city. So take in a show or two and enjoy a dinner out, all while supporting local artists and small businesses.

Soon the city will be dressed for the holidays. The first Lighting Ceremony takes place on Saturday the 19th at Faneuil Hall Marketplace. The Nutcracker Ballet opens the day after Thanksgiving for 40 performances through Dec. 31. And the annual Tree Lighting in Harvard Square is scheduled for Nov. 26.

And remember when giving thanks this November be thankful that you live in (or near) Boston!

Mr. Bean is dead, long live English

Rowan Atkinson won't be reviving his beloved quiet character any time soon The actor on why his less popular bumbling superspy is experiencing a 're-exploitation'

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Mr. Atkinson — or maybe Mr. Bean? — greets his fans.

Rowan Atkinson, the venerable British comic actor, is known for his bumbling, near-silent Mr. Bean. Now, he's back with the blundering, very un-Bond-like British spy Johnny English. Bolstered by a second life on DVD for the first film, Atkinson is hopeful for the character's longevity.

The film has had some impressive success around the world.
When you hear you're the No. 1 movie in Malaysia, Hong Kong, Indonesia and all these other places you think: Well, that's curious.

Given the success of Mr. Bean and Johnny English, do you find people expect you to be a bit more dimwitted in real life?
Dimwitted? I'm not aware of that. [Laughs] Maybe I disappoint them — either by not being dimwitted enough or being more dimwitted than they thought I was going to be.

Where did you get the idea to revisit Johnny English from?
When the first Johnny English movie came out, people thought it was a bit cheap and cheerful. "Yeah, OK, three good jokes but then what?" And then it rather bizarrely established this reputation as a kind of DVD movie that children in particular can watch over and over and over again. The second re-exploitation, as they say.

Have you been tempted to revisit Mr. Bean?
Mr. Bean, I think, is dead and gone. Well, not dead. Just retired. I don't want him to get old, really. I'd rather that he's as I remember him rather than as he would be now if I played him.

Giving himself the chair

During a tense briefing with the prime minister in "Johnny English Reborn," Atkinson fails to control the raising and lowering of his office chair. It's a classic bit of physical comedy; but, as Atkinson explains, a lot of thought goes into something so simple. "There's something about the formality and the seriousness of the scene, which means that no one would ever dare do that or say that," says Atkinson. "That they'd just pretend it's not happening."

'Or,' not to be

All the sexual subplots in the world can't help the Lyric's latest ◗ Hannah Husband comes close though

Ninety minutes of quick-change, door-slamming, mixed-class, sexually liberated 17th century farce sounds like so much fun. Unless, like the Lyric Stage Company's current production of "Or," you're making it feel like nearly sleep-inducing slow motion.

Everything about this show feels like it's suffering from malaise. The timing is off, the performances are underwhelming and even the slamming of doors lacks the crisp, authoritative thud to make it funny.

Part of the problem is that Stacy Fischer's Aphra Behn is dull right from the start. A one-time spy aspiring to be the first female playwright should have a spark in her eyes, deception in her demeanor and a feisty fire in her belly. Fischer feels more like a virginal librarian than a sizzling artist whose thirst for life includes a female lover and a three-way with the King of England.

Ro'ee Levi fares better in all the male roles, though he never feels fully commits to the play's farcical aspects.

Hannah Husband delivers most of the show's good moments in the remaining female roles. She is at her best (and funniest) as the all-knowing British domestic.

Perhaps she can put on a pot of coffee and bring the others up to speed.

Plot points

Upon being freed from debtor's prison, former spy Aphra Behn sets her sights on becoming the first female playwright. Along the way she becomes the King's mistress, takes a mistress of her own and tries to deal with a heavy-drinking ex that everyone thinks is dead.

Getting divorced? Here's your new MO

Divorce coach Lee Block hasn't just seen it all — she's done it twice! Tips for thriving after 'I Don't'

DIGITAL VISION

It's not always happily ever after.

Divorce is one of the most stressful and debilitating processes in life, but Lee Block — a two-time divorcee and the author of "Re-Singled: 12 Truths, Half-Truths, and Untruths of Divorce" — says it doesn't have to be. For anyone caught in the process, here is her guide to retaining mental and physical health while moving on.

DO

FORGIVE YOURSELF
"This is the first thing I tell everyone. You have guilt, but life is a learning lesson and nothing is a mistake. Go forward armed with the knowledge you take from the divorce and what you've learned about who you are."

BE GRATEFUL
"You've got to count your blessings: You have a roof over your head [and] food on the table. You and your family are healthy. Even if you have depression, start being thankful for those small things, and you will begin to feel better."

TAKE SOME 'ME' TIME
"Whether that's walking, taking a long bath, starting a hobby or doing yoga, it allows you to focus away from what's going on. Yoga or some type of mediation is centering. Do something that will help you start each day fresh."

DON'T

BE ANGRY
"This is very difficult, but it gets easier with practice. When you see your ex, just say, 'Hello, how are you?' and move on quickly. You don't have to have a conversation."

SPEAK ANY ILL
"If your ex is badmouthing you all over town, don't do the same thing. They're probably picking at you to get a reaction. It's like a child: If you give them attention, then they do it more. Take the high road."

BE BITTER
"Some people can't help themselves — they wallow in it. There's no such thing as fair. Take a step back and look at everything. Take a long look at the good things."

Carve more than your pumpkin this Halloween

It turns out pumpkins are good for more than stoop decorating and carving contests. Make use of nature's kettlebell with these workout moves, courtesy of Boston Sports Club's master trainer, Eric Salvador. All you need is a 5 to 10 pound pumpkin. A witch's hat, worn by the instructor pictured, is optional. Try these exercises if you dare!

1 SPIDER SQUATS
Holding a pumpkin, perform a squat. Place your feet shoulder width apart, abs pulled in. Squat down slowly as you sit back on your heels, keeping good posture with chest up, shoulders back and chin level. Lower as far as you can, keeping knees behind the toes and not going below 90 degrees. Try for three sets of 20.

▶ Take a free Carve Your Body workout class tomorrow or Monday at noon at Boston Sports Club (1 Davis Sq., 617-776-0086).

2 JACK-O'-LANTERN JUMPS
Start standing with feet about six inches apart. Bend knees and sit down to a 90 degree angle. Lift the pumpkin vertically overhead. With a power jump, leap up and take a giant hop forward. Keep the pumpkin straight overhead as you jump to the front, to the sides and to the back. Try for four sets of four.

3 CREEPY CRUNCHES
Lie on your back with hands holding a pumpkin over your chest, feet about two feet apart, flat on the floor, knees bent. To start the exercise, lift your legs vertically, toes pointing toward the ceiling. Next, holding the pumpkin, lift your shoulder blades off the ground and extend pumpkin vertically toward toes. Try for three sets of 20.

4 LURKING LUNGES
Stand in split stance, right leg in front, left leg in back. Holding a pumpkin, extend your arms in front of you. Bend both knees and lower into a lunge, keeping front knee behind the toe and knees at no lower than 90 degree angles. Once lowered, rotate core 90 degrees to the right and then repeat to the left. Try for three sets of 20.

5 TOMBSTONE TWIST
Standing with your feet shoulder width apart and the pumpkin in your hands, extend your arms up and out and hold the pumpkin in front of you. Rotate your arms and upper body from side to side, pivoting your opposite foot for more range of motion. Try for three sets of 20. METRO

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. You don't want to be wasteful with any of your resources. You may have to say no to someone who is a friend but is known to have trouble with funds.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Should you start to lose your position in a partnership arrangement, it's time to bow out. Once it becomes one-sided, it will be valueless.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. There's a chance that an endeavor that has been fortunate for you is now starting to lose some of its luster. When its promise begins to outweigh what it can deliver, it's time to call it quits.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. If you start searching for faults in others, others will suddenly examine you closely, as well. When dealing with friends or family, more tolerance and understanding is required.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Taking charge of a situation that is beginning to flounder is clearly the best thing to do, but carrying things to extremes is asking for more trouble.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If you think you can pick apart another person's opinion and not be challenged, you're in for a big surprise. You'd be smart to simply accept what others have to say.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Don't leave something in the hands of another that, if handled poorly, could cost you a bundle of money. Indifference to this matter will have you paying the proverbial piper.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. More strain than usual could arise in a valued relationship over an issue that each party believes affects him or her personally. Both of you will be more protective than cooperative.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Unless you have a good attitude about your work, it isn't likely you'll do a good job. The end result of an assignment you resent will reflect your malice.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Instead of trying to be the center of attention, relax and let your friends showboat a bit. They will like you more if you let them strut their stuff.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. If everything turns out great, you could be the first one to step up and take a bow. Conversely, if things go wrong, you're likely to be the first one pointing a finger.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Do not embellish the facts about what you've accomplished just because you're in the presence of a known achiever. It's likely to produce an opposite impression than you'd like. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

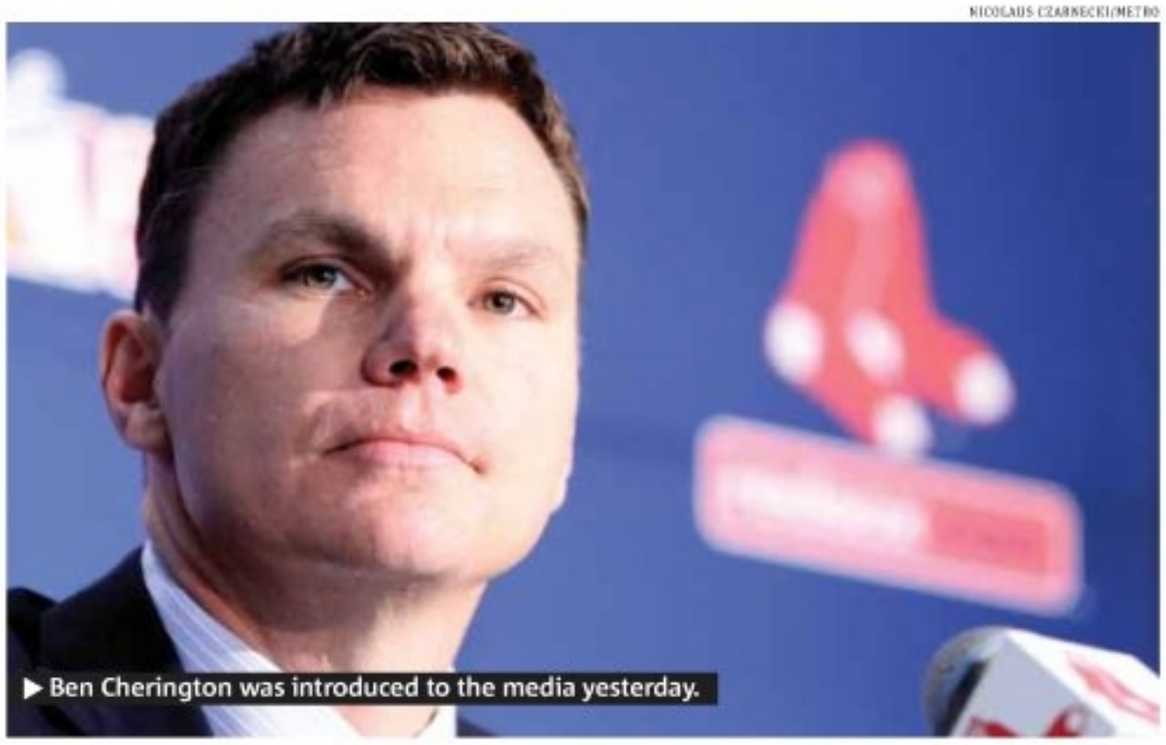
New GM: 'There will be changes'

- Red Sox usher in a new era as Cherington is officially named club's GM
- He briefly held the title before
- Meanwhile, Theo takes office in Chicago

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO



▶ Ben Cherington was introduced to the media yesterday.

Ben Cherington appears to be under no illusions.

He knows things have gotten pretty bad on Yawkey Way. And the new Red Sox general manager, who was introduced to the media yesterday, is out to fix them.

"We've let our fans down in some important ways recently," the GM said at a Fenway Park news conference. "The last few weeks have been painful and difficult. But what I'm left with is an incredible conviction that the Red Sox will be the best organization in baseball."

That means changes are coming, starting with a new manager. Cherington promised the Sox will do "small things" differently, "because what's going to work moving forward is not exactly what's worked in the past."

So don't expect a full-on annihilation of the roster, September choke or not. The "body of work" is simply too strong.

"We have a bunch of players that are really motivated by what happened at the end of this season," Cherington said. METRO

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Theo Epstein is happy to be a Cub.

How they compare

Cherington was introduced in Boston the same day his former boss, Theo Epstein, was unveiled in Chicago. Here's how they stacked up yesterday:

- Cherington money quote: "It's my job to preserve what we're good at, and also serve as a catalyst to decide what we need."
- Epstein money quote: "To me, baseball is better with tradition, baseball is better with history, baseball is better with fans who care, baseball is better in ballparks like this, baseball is better during the day."
- Cherington's biggest task: Finding a new manager, John Farrell or otherwise.
- Epstein's biggest task: Rebuilding the Cubs' entire farm and scouting systems from the ground up. Makes Boston seem easy, huh?

▶ Lackey

Lackey to miss 2012

John Lackey will undergo Tommy John surgery and is expected to miss the entire 2012 season, Red Sox GM Ben Cherington said yesterday.

The new team boss defended the righty, who posted a 6.41 ERA to go with his massive contract.

"John Lackey pitched through circumstances this year that I don't think any of us can fully understand," Cherington said. METRO

Farrell? Likely no

The Blue Jays have amended their club policy on allowing employees to make "lateral moves," the club announced yesterday.

On its face, that takes manager John Farrell out of the equation for the Red Sox job. But he has not denied interest. METRO

After the Charles, Stone sets her eye on London Games

◗ Head of the Charles championship a 'stepping-stone' for Cambridge's Stone ◗ London is the ultimate goal

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Stone, shown earlier this year, completed the three-mile Head of the Charles in 19 minutes, 31.11 seconds.

They'd call it the greatest home-field advantage in sports ... if Genevra Stone performed on a field.

Instead, the water is what Stone calls home, the Charles River just a skipping-stone from where she was raised in Cambridge, the daughter of an accomplished rowing couple.

In 1977, eight years before "Gevvie" was born, her parents Gregg and Lisa won both the men's and women's championship singles at the Head of the Charles.

"I remember going as a little kid, being on the Harvard dock and screaming," Stone said.

Now, it's Gevvie's turn to make the big splash. In front of her family and friends over the weekend, Stone, 26, won the Head of the Charles women's championship singles for the second straight year and third time in the past four.

"I'm making a big push this year. [HotC] is one steppingstone, and it seems like a big one for me."
CAMBRIDGE ROWER GENEVRA STONE

But that was just a starting point. Stone's ultimate dream — the one that's led her to put off medical school — is rowing in the 2012 London Olympics. Stone came close to qualifying in September during the world championships in Bled, Slovenia, but fell just short.

That leaves her to try again next spring to make the final cut. "That's the goal," Stone said.

Tomlin: Brady 'tough to trick'

Steelers coach Mike Tomlin knows he won't have an easy time containing Tom Brady this Sunday.

"He is just very good physically and mentally," Tomlin said yesterday. "He is very talented in both areas. He is tough to trick; he makes quick decisions, he has pinpoint accuracy and he has the arm to do the things he desires to do." METRO

No show for TO

True to form, Terrell Owens did a good job hyping up yesterday's workout. Unfortunately for him, no NFL teams showed up.

Owens, 37, took the field in Calabasas, Calif., with eyes on proving he's still a go-to wideout after ACL surgery.

But only the media turned out. METRO

Milton is in the Money

We're talking Money magazine
Lower-priced condos are actually up for grabs in the second-best place to live in the country

The thing about affluent cities like Boston is that their high-end properties always sell quickly, leaving a nice pool of lower-priced homes up for grabs. Take the Residences at Brook Hill in Milton's Lower Mills. This small, tasteful 18-unit development is about 85 percent sold since hitting the market this spring. But the homes that were snapped up were the higher-priced ones.

"I'm surprised," says listing agent Peter Kelly of Kelley and Rege Properties. "Not that they sold — there's a market for quality developments like this. But we were surprised that the more expensive ones went first and so quickly. It was the ones priced from $525,000 to $599,000 that sold within the first month."

Brook Hill, whose fanciful name is substantiated by the fact that it's not too far from Pine Hill Brook, also has three commercial spaces, one of which is a spa, adding a nice on-site amenity for residents. Apartments, which have varied floor plans, range from $379,000 to $599,000. But all are two-bedrooms and two-bathrooms, so even lower-priced ones aren't studio shoeboxes.

Buyers came from all over, Kelly says, from Boston to the Cape, especially after Money magazine's 2011 survey put Milton as the second-best place to live in the country.

"Any address in Milton is always desirable. Values in Milton have maintained better than anywhere," he says. "But what really helped was being voted the second-best place to live. We saw a big surge in buyers after that. When it comes to that old tale of location, this is it. Milton is hot."

LOUISA CARAGAN

▶ Mummify your chairs
"Using tea bags and warm water, stain several rolls of white gauze to make it look like they've been buried underground for years. Simply wrap the chairs with the gauze and secure it in place using poster strips."

▶ Create a centerpiece with freaky literature
"Stack scary old books such as "The Alfred Hitchcock Collection," "Frankenstein" and "Dracula" on tables and benches in the home. Add a few candles on top of the stack to help add height and dimension."

▶ Abandoned mansion chic
"Stretch out thin layers of cotton and secure it in place using Command mini hooks. Then add plastic spiders, bats and other creepy crawlers as finishing touches."

▶ Eerie mood lighting
"Cut Halloween shapes, such as cats and bats, out of black construction paper. Then adhere them to the inside of an inexpensive lampshade using poster strips. When the lamp is turned on, spooky shadows will illuminate the room."

REAL ESTATE ON THE GO!

WHERE IS THE REAL ESTATE MARKET HEADED?

By Attorney George Warshaw

Where is the market going? The answer is easy: no one knows.

There has been a noticeable increase in sales activity the past three months over the same period last year, but don't get too excited. Last year was terrible.

Banker & Tradesman® reported that home sales increased in July, August and September over the same period last year. Condo prices rose slightly, while single-family homes saw greater stability.

Rents have increased due to high demand. The first-time home buyer market should pick up as the cost of home ownership becomes more feasible in comparison to rents.

It's still a slow, tortuous recovery.

That's good news for small real estate investors, as two and three-family homes are in sharp demand, especially among foreclosure buyers. "Buy it cheap now and profit from it later," seems to be the calling card among buyers.

The advice I give homeowners is basic: use common sense. Whittle down your personal expenses, pay attention to your credit rating, put yourself in the best financial position to take advantage of opportunities when you see them, and protect yourself if things get worse.

The good news: it's an election year. Historically, they will do something – or they're gone!
